Report of the Antiquarian Committee for the year 1913

Museum of Archaeology and of Ethnology,
December 10, 1914.

The ANTIQUARIAN COMMITTEE beg leave to present their Twenty-ninth Annual Report to the Senate.

NEW BUILDING. On June 16th, 1913, the old Museum was finally vacated, and the Curator and staff took possession of the new building. The Reader in Ethnology has also occupied his room. The floor above it, temporarily to be used for lectures, has been fitted with an electric lantern, screen, etc. In the attics temporary accommodation, also, has been found for Dr Haddon's collection of crania, etc., which he has arranged for the use of his students.

The thanks of the Committee are very specially due to Charles E. Keyser, M.A., Trinity College, President of the British Archaeological Association, for his generous gift of fifteen hundred pounds which has provided the means for the erection of one of the main exhibition galleries. Building operations thus continue unchecked and the erection of the ground floor of the second section of Block II has been taken in hand.

BENEFACTORS COMMEMORATED. The large exhibition hall provided in Block I which has been reserved for American exhibits has been named the "Maudslay Hall," after Alfred P. Maudslay, M.A., of Trinity Hall, D.Sc. Oxon., who, in 1884, by the gift of his Fijian collection contributed largely to the establishment of the Ethnological Section*. Mr Maudslay subsequently enriched the Museum with a set of magnificent casts of Guatemalan sculptured monuments taken by himself from the originals in the forest-buried city of Copang. This museum is the only one in the country in which such important illustrations of American archaeology are exhibited.

The second floor, consisting of a spacious gallery surrounding the Maudslay Hall, has been named the "Andrews Gallery" in grateful memory of the late James Bruyn Andrews, who, in 1909, bequeathed to the Museum a legacy of five thousand pounds and in previous years had increased both the archaeological and ethnological collections with numerous gifts.

FURNITURE. A large proportion of the furniture required for Block I has been provided by adapting for the purpose the greater part of the fittings taken from the old museum. As various kinds of timber had been employed for the show-cases and cabinets, those of dark wood were utilised, as far as was practicable, for the furnishing of the Maudslay Hall, and those of light wood for the Andrews Gallery. Sheet glass has now been replaced by plate in all the show-cases, which have been fitted with a simplified form of iron brackets and shelf bars, devised by the Curator. Considerable exhibition space has been gained by enclosing the bases of the double-sided show-cases with glazed doors, and converting the sets of drawers which they formerly housed into independent cabinets. A double tier of glazed drawers has been fitted under the wall-cases in the Maudslay Hall. The task of adapting this furniture to the requirements of the new museum has been admirably carried out by Messrs Prime Bros, and a saving of considerably over a thousand pounds on the estimated cost of new furniture has thereby been effected.

Two table-cases, one, the gift of the Curator, for the exhibition of New Zealand jade ornaments, the other, purchased, for selected stone implements, have been fitted to chests of drawers in the Andrews Gallery. A set of deal tables for the work-rooms and a considerable number of plate-glass shelves for the show-cases have also been purchased and the two rooms on the ground floor, which, pending the completion of the building, have to serve as a library, have been fitted with new oak bookcases and a pair of cupboards to hold unbound serials.

The rooms occupied by the Curator and the Reader in Ethnology have been furnished by them at their own expense.

WORK DONE. The work of packing up and removing the collections to the new building was continued during the first half of the year. It was found impossible, for want of space, to attempt any exhibition of specimens, as all the show-cases had to be utilised for storage purposes and the rest of the collections will have to remain packed up in boxes until the main block of the Museum has been completed.

N. W. Thomas, M.A., of Trinity College, Government Anthropologist of Nigeria, kindly devoted a week to superintending the work of roughly classifying and labelling his collections, mentioned below; and much of the Assistant's time has been devoted to cleaning, mending and restoring the many specimens which were damaged in transit from Nigeria.

A considerable number of local antiquities have been mounted on boards.

COLLECTIONS. The list of Accessions to the Museum from January 1 to December 31, 1913, is given in the Appendix. Among them the following may be specially mentioned:

Archaeological: The Museum is deeply indebted to the Mayor and Town Council of Cambridge for their gift of a remarkably fine 16th century mantelpiece, carved in clunch, which was taken from the house of the Veysy family in Petty Cury before it was demolished in 1889*.

A collection of miscellaneous objects found by the donor, J. W. E. Conybeare, M.A., Trinity College, at Barrington, Cambridgeshire, comprises over one hundred and fifty specimens of various dates. The fine set of Saxon brooches, necklaces, weapons, and implements form a most valuable addition to the Saxon collection obtained from the same locality by Mr Walter K. Foster, and bequeathed by him to the Museum in 1891.

Sir Arthur Evans has generously presented over one hundred objects ranging in date from prehistoric times to the eighteenth century, which he selected from the East Anglian collection formed by his father, the late Sir John Evans⁺. The gift includes an exceptionally fine polished celt of diorite, and a remarkable spear-head of bronze which, with other specimens included in this collection, are figured in Sir John Evans's works.

An interesting collection of miscellaneous objects of various dates—chiefly fragmentary pottery illustrative of many kinds of ware, obtained from excavations made in the town and the county has been given by Professor T. McKenny Hughes.

A set of objects in stone, shell, bone, and clay, obtained from various mounds in Florida and adjacent States has been given by Mr C. B. Moore.

From C. Hartley, M.A., the Museum has received a comprehensive series of minute implements, chipped in crystal, from Bardarawela, Ceylon.

Ethnological: A small grant made by the Committee to N. W. Thomas, M.A., for collecting purposes among the Ibo and Ijo people, has borne good fruit in a second collection numbering over six hundred specimens. When this collection is amalgamated with the first, the Museum will be able to show a thoroughly representative series of the manufactures of Southern Nigeria.

To Sir Henry Bulwer, G.C.M.G., former Governor of Natal, and High Commissioner in Cyprus, the Museum is indebted for a collection of carefully selected Zulu weapons, personal ornaments, implements, and utensils.

* See T. D. Atkinson: On the house of the Veysy family in Cambridge, Proc. Camb. Ant. Soc., Vol. vii. p. 93, pi. xxi.

+ Presented through Professor Ridgeway, August 6, 1913.

With Professor Bevan's subscription to the Museum Accessions Fund some notable additions have again been made to his collection of New Zealand jade ornaments.

Dr Venn has enabled the Curator to purchase an interesting set of Ifuguo carved wooden spoons, bowls, and dishes, which are the first objects the Museum has obtained from the Philippine Islands.

LIST OF ACCESSIONS FROM JANUARY 1 TO DECEMBER 31, 1913.

I. ARCHAEOLOGY.

BRITISH.

PREHISTORIC.

STONE.

(Unless otherwise specified the implements are made of flint.)

Celts.

Chipped :

1, 2. Two small, ridged, roughly fashioned. Icklingham, S.t *C. A. S.++

3—6. Four from various Cambridgeshire Fens, including one large, symmetrical, convex-faced example of ovoid form (6"-3 x 3"")? prepared for grinding. Burwell. Sir Arthur Evans.

Partially ground:

7—15. Nine from various Cambridgeshire Fens (one found with grinding slab, etc., No. 52), including three, adze-like examples of the expanding form, one being a wellshaped, bowed specimen, with ridged back, square butt-end, and well-polished cutting edge (5" x 1"7), Reach Fen, 1873 (engraved in Evans's "Stone Implements," Ed. 2 (1897), as fig. 35 a, p. 92); and one with broad cutting-edge and taper butt (4"2x 1"7). Reach Fen, 1868. Sir Arthur Evans.*

Ground :

16—29. Fourteen from various Cambridgeshire Fens (one found with celt No. 7, and grinding-slab, etc., No. 52) of various sizes and forms, including one thin, pyriform example of quartzite with flat faces and sides (3"5 x 1"-8). Burwell Fen. Sir Arthur Evans.*

30. The lower portion of a large, finely ground example with curved cutting-edge (breadth 3"). Shippea Hill, C. *C. A. S.

Polished:

31. One highly finished example of mottled pale green diorite: the thin, slightly bowed blade, brightly polished throughout, is provided with a broad, curved, cutting-edge, from which the sharp sides, with edge just rounded off, taper in a very gentle curve to the sharp pointed butt-end (7"-3 x 3"). Burwell Fen, C., 1871. (Evans, fig. 52, p. 107.) Sir Arthur Evans.*

ADZES.

32. One flat, boldly chipped from a large flake, with convex back, broad, square, cutting-edge and pointed butt (4"1 x 1"-9). Burwell Fen, C., 1860. Sir Arthur Evans.*

* The name of a donor is marked with an asterisk in those cases in which the object has been acquired by purchase with money subscribed to the Museum Accessions Fund.

+ The letters C., S., and N., printed after the names of places, indicate, respectively, the counties of Cambridgeshire, Suffolk, and Norfolk.

++ C. 1. S., stands for the Cambridge Antiquarian Society.

33—37. Five chipped of various sizes from Suffolk and Norfolk, including one, small, straight-sided example with square cutting-edge, and sharp, tapering, rounded butt-end (2"-5 x 1"). Undley, S. *C. A. S.

FABRICATORS.

38—43. Six chipped, variously shaped. Suffolk and Norfolk. *C. A. S.

CHISELS.

44. One chipped with ridged back and gouge-like cutting-edge (4"-9 x 1"-1). Undley, S. *C. A. S.

45, 46. Two partially ground with rounded cutting-edges (4"-7 x 1" and 4"-3 x 1"). Bottisham Fen, C., 1869, and Burwell Fen, C., 1875; and

47. One remarkable, partially ground, double-ended, implement (5"4 x 1"5), the broad end being chipped into a straight edge (0"9) blunted by grinding, while at the other end a narrow wedge-shaped cutting edge (0"*3), at right angles to the plane of the first, has been produced by grinding flat both sides of the taper butt (Evans, fig. 109, p. 175). Burwell, C., 1866. Sir Arthur Evans. [Nos. 45—47.]

BORERS.

48—51. Four of various forms, including one, large, triangular example. Norfolk and Suffolk. *C. A. S.

GRINDING-STONES, ETC.

52 a—e. One small slab of micaceous sand-stone, polished on both faces by grinding (5"-5 x 4"), found associated with two Hint celts (one ground all over, the other at the edge only), and two Bub-angular fragments of green stone, apparently selected for the manufacture of another pair of celts. Burwell Fen, C., 1869. (See Evans, p. 263.) Sir Arthur Evans.

53 a, b. A small oblong slab, polished on both faces (3" x 1"-7), and a cylindrical muller. Found together at Sedge Farm. Lakenheath, 8., 1913. *C. A. S.

KNIVES.

54. One, a thick, elongate flake with rounded ends and well chipped convex back and edges (3"7 x 1"-2). Burwell Fen, C. Sir Arthur Evans.

55—62. Eight chipped: two large, thick, oval, boldly chipped (4" x 3"). Elvedon, S. and Weeting, N.; one tri-

Angular, three small leaf-shaped ; one spear-shaped (?knife), and one large, elongate, flake. Suffolk and Norfolk. *C.A.S.

63—66. Four ground: one lozenge-shaped with chipped faces and only one side ground (3"-2 x 2"-4), Bottisham, C., 1890 (tee Evans, p. 335); one roughly circular, slightly ground at the edge, Burwell, C., 1886; one rounded oblong with partially ground edge (3"x2"-5), Bottisham Fen, C., 1899; and one thin rounded oblong, polished throughout of unusually symmetrical form with slightly convex hack and concave under surface (4"-3 x 2"-8), Burwell Fen, C. Sir Arthur Event.

SCRAPERS.

67. One large side-scraper. Feltwell, N. *C. A. S.

ARROW-HEADS.

Tanged :

68. One with sharp shoulders and broad tang (1"-5x0"8). Undley, S. *C. A. S.

Tanged and barbed:

69—71. Three: one brood, with minute triangular tang and very long square barbs (1"1x1"), Eriswell, S.; one straight-sided (imperfect), with broad tang and square barbs (1"-5 x 1"1), Lakenheath, S.; one roughly chipped with large tang; and one with one large and one small barb (1" x0"8). Eriswell, S. *C. A. S.

72. One thick, long, tapering, with small pointed tang and barbs (2"Tx0"-8). Barrington, C., 1893. J. W. E. Conybeare, M. A.

Single-barbed :

73. One with very long, taper barbs (2" x 0"9). Icklingham, S. *C. A. S.

Triangular:

74. One broad, roughly chipped (1"-6x 1"5), Undley, S.; and one with both faces chipped (1"-8 x 1"-4). Lakenheath, S. *C. A. S.

Chisel-ended:

75. One carefully chipped, with convex back (1"-3 x 0"9). Copolow, S. *C. A. S.

Lozenge-shaped:

76. One unsymmetrical (1" x 0"-7). Icklingham, S. *C. A. S.

Leaf-shaped :

77. 78. Two broad with rounded base: one very roughly chipped, and one flat with finely chipped, convex back (1"4 x0"-9), Icklingham and Eriswell, S.; and two elongate: one flat, with rounded base (imperfect), the other thick with pointed base (2"1 x0"-7). Feltwell, S. *C. A. S.

BRONZE.

CELTS.

79, 80. Two flat: one with widely expanded cutting- edge, the other thicker and slimmer with faintly flanged sides. Cambridge;

81—90. Ten palstaves from Cambridgeshire: two plain, with square stops, Bottisham and Wicken; two with plain shield: one large, Swaffham Fen, C.; and one remarkable slim example with expanding cutting-edge (5"4 x 1"-2), Cambridge; six with shields divided by a vertical ray (two

LATE

111. A bronze brooch of the early La Tene typo (1"-9x0" 6): the head, surmounted with a flat wire loop, is formed by the spring coiled round an axis of bronze; the being provided with a single loop), including one finely cast example (6"-4x2"8) without loop, Harston, C., 1881. (Evans, "Bronze Implements," fig. 60, p. 78); and

91—97. Seven socketed with single loop: three plain. Bottisham Fen and Burwell Fen, C., the smallest of these (3"-2 x 1"-8) was found associated with spear No. 101 and ring No. 109; one with bevelled sides (loop missing), Cambridge Fens, 1870; one with faces decorated with three short ribs (3"-8 x 2") found with gouge No. 99 at Barrington, C. (Evans, fig. 125, p. 127); and two slim square-sided, one bearing an unusual decoration on either face, in form of a triangular shield incised in double lines (4"4 x 1"-3), Barrington, C., 1867 (Evans, fig. 148, p. 128). Sir Arthur Evans. [Nos. 79—97.]

98. One small socketed (imperfect). Barrington, C. J. W. E. Conybeare, M.A.

GOUGE.

99. One plain, cylindrical, socketed (3"4 x 0"8), found with celt No. 95. Barrington, C. Sir Arthur Evans.

HAMMER.

100. One with oblong socket and rounded sides (3"x1"). Cambridge, 1879. Sir Arthur Evans.

SPEARHEADS.

101—105. Five socketed, viz., four leaf-shaped: one large plain (10"-3 x 1"-8) found with socketed celt No. 93 and ring No. 109 at Burwell, C., 1862; and two plain smaller; one, imperfect, with very short wide socket and one with narrow wings continued as a rib down to rivet hole of socket (5"*5 x 2"-3), Newton, C.; and one prominently keeled with taper point and perforated wing lobes (7"-6 x 1"-3), Quy Fen, C., 1855; and one very large finely cast example, with flat broadly grooved wings, the square shoulders of which are united to the long socket, which has no rivet holes, by a pair of elongate loops (15"-5x1"8, socket 5"7), Isleham Fen, C., 1863 (Evans, fig. 406, p. 328). Sir Arthur Evans.

SWORDS.

106. One leaf-shaped, decorated on both faces with a plain incised band, the hilt-plate, drilled for eight rivets, ends in a pair of small, out-turned fangs (18"8x2"-2). Cambridge. Sir Arthur Evans.

DAGGERS.

107, 108. Two: one broad blade with flat central rib and notched hilt-plate (10"5 x 1"-5), Cambridge, 1876; and one stout, keeled and ribbed blade, with double notched expanding hilt-plate (7"-2 x 1"-7), Soham Fen, C. Sir Arthur Evans.

RING.

109. One penannular, with sharply ridged face (d. 0"9) found with celt No. 93, spear-head No. 101 and a rough lump of bronze at Burwell Fen, C. June, 1862. Sir Arthur Evans.

BONE.

CELTIC.

bow, a broad pointed oval, bears concentric grooving, and extends below into a penannular loop, moulded with pin catch and a small, ornate disc terminal. (An identical, but somewhat smaller, brooch found in the Thames near London is given as figure 78, 100. In the "British Museum Guide to the Antiquities of the Early Iron Age," 1905). Barrington, C., 1877;

112a—g. Seven small bronze rings, flat or rounded, of various diameters; and

113. A small wide-mouthed cup of dark earthenware, with sloping-in, straight, sides. Barrington, C. J. W. E. Conyheare, M.A. [Nos. III—113.]

114. A bone hand-comb with square end, incised with a lattice pattern (5"8x1"-6), used in weaving. Malton, C., 1860. Sir Arthur Evans.

ROMAN.

BRONZE.

115. A circular locket (2"-5), hinged so as to open into two equal halves, containing a roundel of glass (? mirror); the flat faces decorated with ten nipple-shaped studs. Cambridge; and

116—118. Three brooches: one gilt of oblong form (2"-1 x 0"-8), representing a conventionalised tortoise with a well-moulded head projecting from either end (covers for pin hinge and catch), the back being divided into four panels set with red enamel, Cambridge, 1872; one enamelled, kite-shaped, with large central lunate opening (1"-8 x 1"-4). Coton, C., 1872; and one 'T'-shaped with large tubular head enclosing the bronze spring and flat bow set with a large disc (2"x1"), Haslingfield, C. Sir Arthur Evans. [Nos. 115—118.]

119—122. Four fibulae: three bow-shaped with spring, and one, a flat fluted band, with hinge. Barrington, C., 1874-1877. J. W. E. Conyheare, M.A.

123. A penannular wire fibula with hooked ends (1"-1). Cambridge;

124. A brooch of unusual form (2"-6 x 1"-2), consisting of a larger and a smaller stout disc, with faces moulded in concentric rings, Cambridge, 1880; and

125. A narrow band-armlet with overlapping square ends (w. 0"-2, d. 2"), the face incised with a zig-zag pattern. Coton, C., 1872. Sir Arthur Evans. [Nos. 123—125.]

126. A bronze pin with faceted head (1".3). Lakenheath, S., 1913. *C. A. S.

127. A slim pin with flat crescent head and spirally twisted shank (2"-8 x 0"3), ? Saxon. Barrington, C. J. W. E. Conyheare, M.A.

128. A style with globular neck and rounded shank (4"-3 x 0"-4). Cambridge;

129. A convex-faced disc (1"-7) with double square loop (strap-slide for harness) ?Roman, Cambridge;

130—132. Three keys: one flat with double-toothed, oblong web and large diamond-shaped bow with cross in openwork (2"-8x1"3); one small, square-shanked, with circular bow and six-toothed web (1"-8 x 0"-6); and one plain finger ring key with comb-like web, Cambridge; and

133. A steelyard with one hook attached (7"-2), Cambridge. Sir Arthur Evans. [Nos. 128—133.]

134. A looped bronze weight in form of a man's bust (2"-5). London (Simpson Coll.). Baron A. von Hugel.

LEAD.

135. 136. A minute flat-rimmed saucer (d. 1"-3), and a square weight with bevelled sides, and face moulded with a star-shaped device. (1"-7 x 1"-7) Barrington, C. J. W. E. Conyheare, M.A.

EARTHENWARE.

137. A jug of brown clay with wide, trefoil mouth (5"-5x4"-2). Bottisham, C., 1890. *C. A. S.

138. A small cup and the lower portion of a tall cinerary urn bearing curious incised decoration, ? Saxon. Barrington, C. J. W. E. Conyheare, M.A.

139. A number of spindle whorls (some of bone) of various forms and sizes. Barrington, C. J. W. E. Conyheare, M.A.

BONE.

140—150. Eleven implements: three drills; one chisel with perforated haft-end; two bodkins with flat triangular heads; and five spindle-shaped objects with pointed ends (7 for decorating pottery). Barrington, C. J. W. E. Conyheare, M.A. (Some of the objects included under Nos. 139—150 may be Saxon or of later date.)

SAXON.

GLASS, ETC.

151—154. Four necklaces: one, composed of fifty-five blue and variegated glass beads, is fitted with a remarkable form of fanged, bronze, hasp, the gilt oblong plates of which are decorated in relief with a roundel set with a quatrefoil; two of glass and clay beads of various forms and colour, numbering, respectively, thirty and thirty-four; and one of forty graduated amber beads; and

155—158. One large discoidal bead of amber (1"-5 x 1"-4), two beads of crystal, and a number of stone beads of natural formation, Barrington, C. J. W. E. Conyheare, M.A. [Nos. 151—158.]

BRONZE.

159—163. Five disc-brooches: three flat with milled edges; two (a pair) decorated with a cruciform design, rendered by large indented dots, and one with a pair of incised bands; and two with gilt faces bearing marginal headings, one (1"-6) set with a jet disc incised with the figure of a bird of prey flying, and one (1"-4) set with a cone-shaped piece of opaque parti-coloured glass;

164—167. Four saucer-brooches: two gilt, decorated in relief with zoomorphic designs—one (2"-4) set with a blue glass bead is of the "applied form" (rim missing); and one (1"-8) is cast entire; the two others (a pair) are of the applied form and bear ungilt bronze plates stamped with a simple dotted-in wheel pattern (2"-5);

168—171. Four square-headed brooches: the largest (4"-4 x 1"-4) with finely moulded central oblong expansion and mask of unusual design; and

172, 173. Two brooches of divergent form: one with square head (nicked and concave sided), and broad lozenge-shaped base with small beaded terminal (2"7x1"), and one with a rounded triangular head and elongated triangular base, all the angles forming rounded expansions decorated with a circular punch mark (1"-9 x 0"-6);

174, 175. Two pairs of oblong tinned hasps with ornate border (1"3 x 0"8);

176, 177. Three small buckles. Barrington, C. J. W. E. Conyheare, M.A. [Nos. 159—177.]

178, 179. Two finger-rings: one a treble, spirally, coiled silver band, and one of bronze wire with looped ends. Barrington, C., 1875; and

A stout, oblong, plate with perforated expanded ends and lobed central expansion decorated with a raised
